Jingi: Glup-glup... Fuaaaah... After all, the sake you drink in the hot springs is the best!

Haruaki: Don't drink too much, Jingi.

Jingi: Hehe, I don't.

Haruaki: Well, at this rate, the meaning of your coming all the way to Minoshima must be...

Jingi: Glup-glup... Aaaaaah... Uh... Don't worry, he's getting better at controlling his power. The training is going well. Yukito is getting straight like him.

Haruaki: I see.

Jingi: Well, it's natural because he has me as his teacher. I mean, if you're so worried about Yukito, why don't you come to Ninoshima and talk to him directly? Even Momoko-san would be happy if she could see Haru-nii's face.

Haruaki: I'd like to. As the Shinto priest, I am busy with both jobs. It is difficult to find free time. In that sense, Jingi is an idle person who is free 24/7. Do not hesitate to call me and I will help you.

Jingi: Sure... What? Who is the one who is free 24 hours a day, 7 days a week?

Haruaki: Hahahaha...

Jingi: Hey! What are you laughing at?!

Haruaki: Hahahaha... Don't be mad, Jingi.

Chatarou: It seems that the teacher is very excited.

Yako: It's strange, isn't it? Just because they grew up like brothers. I can't believe teacher and that good-for-nothing Jingi get along so well.

Chatarou: His personalities are totally different.

Yako: They're the exact opposite.

Chatarou and Yako: Hm, it really is a mystery.
