[POSITION, OBJECTIVES]

A leader of the yakuza group Kagiroyigumi. The world considers her the lover of Unno Yutaka, but it is not true.

After losing her family in an air raid, she opened a small black market stall after the war. She picked up a starving Unno at the side of the road and nursed him, but she got caught up in a conflict between groups and was severely injured. To stop Unno's frenzy and rampage, she became a servant by eating a part of his flame.

After that, she founded Kagiroyigumi with Unno and received the nickname "Hanakumo". She runs the administrative work at the "Yakumo" gambling hall and contributes to the group's relatively good reputation.

[PERSONALITY, CONDUCT]

The first person is "Atai".

Unno Yutaka is "Bastard" and "Yutaka-chan". Okuma Tamataro is "Okuma". A lotus leaf.

She pretends to be a smart yakuza or a charming woman, but she soon collapses and becomes a simple village girl. Her true nature is quite a bit younger than her actual age. The people around her also understand that and consider her the second trick of them. When she gets angry, she goes into a rage and destroys things around her.

She understands Unno's desire for destruction more deeply than anyone and she fights every day to somehow keep him alive. The reason why she plays a role that she doesn't feel suitable for as an executive of "Kagiroyigumi" is because she is close to him. However, she is very hesitant to enter into the easier male-female relationship.

[ABILITIES, TACTICS]

She is called "Hanakumo" because she shoots countless threads of red flame from her fingers and hair at high speed. She has the power to blow up a house with a single hit and gently blow a person away. In addition, she has a wide range of functions, such as connecting threads to communicate with others, searching for enemies by spreading them out radially, and directly manipulating objects with threads. However, her fighting ability is low.
